A good introduction to Islamic Law

By Vinay Varma

This book is a good, balanced and concise introduction to Islamic Law, intended as a ready-reference textbook. It delineates schools of Islamic Law, history of canonisation of Hadith and the Sharia, and countries where reform of Islamic Law has been carried out.

The author is a practicing lawyer in Nigeria who was inspired to write this textbook, because none existed. His position is Maliki (the Sunni school dominant in North Africa) although he acknowledges that the Hanifi school (dominant in Asia) is the most liberal.

He focuses on Civil law, because traditional criminal law has been abandoned in most Islamic countries, in tune with the times.

He covers various aspects of Civil law like inheritance, properties, Waqf, rights of women, etc.
